said he would like to make a statement to the Court in reference to the reason why the defendants had not been able to procure the witnesses in this case. He said that at eight o'clock last night, he got from his House, Judge Thompson, an allowance of the writ of habeas corpus, which he took to Mr. Shakerly's house, but that that gentleman was not at home. He then proceeded in a cab to Mr. Howell's, the Clerk of the Quarter Sessions, and asked him to have the habeas corpus directed to the Superintendent of the Prison issued, and to have the seal of the Court put to the subpœna. Mr. Howell declined to do so, but consented going in a cab to Mr. Shakerly's house. When they got there Mr. S. was not in. Mr. Howell remained there while Mr. Reed went in search of Mr. Shakerly. After a short time Mr. Shakerly came home, and then refused to go to the office for the purpose of putting the seal to the subpœna. Mr. Reed said that the counsel for the defendants had served notice upon all the witnesses in the case, but their attendance could not be secured.

Mr. Rush, District-Attorney, said Mr. Shakerly had been long and favorably known as a reputable citizen and a faithful officer, and that which he had done was not at all censurable. He said he (Mr. Rush) had done all in his power to procure the witnesses.

Mr. Reed said he did not intend to impeach Mr. Shakerly, but simply to make a statement showing why the witnesses were not present. That the delay occasioned in procuring the writ did not give them sufficient time.

Judge Thompson said that there was no necessity for excuses for Mr. Shakerly's course. He had done nothing which could be complained of. That he (the Judge) had not the right to direct the officers of the Court to get up at all hours of the night to execute his commands.

Mr. Conrad proposed an adjournment until 2 or 3 o'clock, in order to get the witnesses.

Mr. W. D. Baker proposed agreeing upon a given state of facts selected from the newspapers.

Judge Thompson said he knew nothing about the case. He had read none of the testimony, and did not know who the parties were or where they came from, but preferred hearing the case from the mouths of the witnesses.

Michael Ryan was called—Testified to the same as given by him before the Mayor, yesterday. He could not swear positively to the man English, but thought he looked like the man.

On cross-examination there was nothing new brought out.

Henry Dyer, Constable of the Fourth Ward, was sworn and testified to nothing new.

Jos. Fiske, sworn—I was in the neighborhood of South-street; saw the fiddler in South between Fourth and Fifth, and got hold of the rope; they were shouting, Kill the sons of b—; I was on the rope; I had hold of the rope when the pistol was fired; I take English to be the man who fired the pistol at Ninth and South streets; the man ran up Ninth; I saw that man on the rope [Hisses]; I know nothing else; I ran down when the pistol was fired.

Cross-examined by Mr. Mundy—The man fired from the rope running.

Cross-Examination by D. P. Brown—I saw a man ahead of the man who fired the pistol.

Question—How did you contrive to see behind you?

Answer—The man ran up towards the front of the rope past me; the reason why I ran with them is because I belong to the Wm. Penn Hose; the next morning I went down to see McIntyre; I told Police-Officer Barton what I knew of it; I never spoke of it until Sunday night.

Officer Easton, who was examined yesterday before the Mayor, testified to nothing new.

Officer Spitik, also examined yesterday.

Cross-examined by D. P. Brown—Don't know what Sheer passed to another person down by the Sunday market; I saw Sheer and Hicks do nothing that I know except what I have said.

Lieut. Carson was examined and testified to nothing new. He underwent a very severe cross-examination by Mr. Brown.

Lieut. Gilbert was sworn and testified to the same facts which he testified to before the Mayor.

Mr. Mundy asked before the case closed, that the Commonwealth would produce the ball that killed McIntyre.

Mr. Reed said that he could not do so, but would state that the ball did not look as if it could have come from English's pistol.

Several other witnesses were examined, and finally all but three of the Shifflers were released on $600 bail each to keep the peace.

When they came out, the four or five hundred persons who were in attendance cheered them lustily, and proceeded with them to their houses, cheering all the way. The Shifflers say they will have revenge for the indignities to which they have been subjected.

Judges Thompson and Allison, yesterday afternoon, in reference to an application made to them for an order on the Sheriff to put the watchers, appointed by the Court, in the election polls, said they were unwilling, at the present time, to decide, as they consider it a question of great importance. They say in case the Watchers should be refused admission at any poll where they have been appointed, the Court will consider it prima facie evidence of fraud, and would throw the count of that poll out in case of a contest.

Last night, a little after 10 o'clock, while a party of young Fillmore men were cheering in front of the Daily News office, a cowardly miscreant came up behind one of them, and stabbed him. The assassin ran, and was pursued down to the Upton Hotel, in which he took shelter, and made his escape finally out of the back way. The wound was not considered dangerous.

The above is all of importance that has occurred to this time. I will send later news by telegraph.

Tremendous Excitement in Philadelphia—Character of the Returns Received—Great Gatherings in the Streets.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Daily Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Tuesday, Oct. 14—11 P. M.

The entire population here is in an uproar, but as yet there has been no fighting worthy of special notice.

The returns from the city, so far as heard from, indicate a Democratic gain, and the same is true of the returns from the State. Still they are such as to render it impossible to tell at this hour what the general result is.

Notwithstanding the cry of Democratic gains, the Union men are by far the most numerous in the streets, and they are the most enthusiastic. There are now all of 20,000 persons in front of the Fillmore Head-quarters, listening to announcements from the balcony favorable to their wishes. There are several thousands in front of the Orleans House, keeping up a continual cheering for the American ticket. The Republican head-quarters are filled with Union men, hoping for success, and there are several thousands in and about the Democratic head-quarters, swearing they have carried the State by 20,000. Fifth-street is filled for several blocks in front of the newspaper offices with people calling wildly in favor of their individual favorites.

The Keystone Club are now marching down Chestnut-street, followed by about 5,000 Democrats, to the music of a large band, and their shouts for BUCHANAN rend the air.

What returns have been received will be sent to you by the Association Agent, and if anything serious occurs before morning I will telegraph immediately.

Philadelphia has not been in so great commotion for a long time, and if the opposing thousands should come into collision the consequences could not but be terrible. J. A.

The Returns.

The returns come in very slowly, and principally by majorities, so that the aggregate vote cast cannot be determined. Below will be found all we have thus far received:

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 14.

In Bedford Borough, Bedford County, the Democratic State ticket has a majority of 63—a gain of seven over the election of last Fall.

Gaysport, Blair County—Democratic majority 73 on the State ticket—a gain of 11 since last Fall. Democratic Congressional ticket 83 majority.

Easton, Northampton County, 65 Democratic majority on the State ticket.

Stroudsburg, Monroe County, 27 majority for the Union ticket.

Bedford Township—Democratic majority of 32—a gain of 16 since last Fall.

Susquehanna County—Montrose gives the Union ticket 91 majority; Great Bend, 63 Union majority; Susquehanna Depot, 14 Union majority; Oakland, 4 Union majority; Harmony, 40 Union majority.

Wilkesbarre, Luzerne County, 80 Union majority.

Honesdale, Wayne County, 50 Union majority.

Shippensburg, Cumberland County, 65 majority for Union Democrat, for Congress.

Johnstown, Cambria County, 100 Democratic majority.

Lancaster City, 600 Democratic majority.

Pittston, Luzerne County, 60 Democratic majority.

PHILADELPHIA, Tuesday, Oct. 14—10 P. M.

The following are the reported Democratic majorities in this City: First Ward 200; Second Ward over 400; Third Ward over 400; Fourth Ward 1,400; Eleventh Ward 300.

If the above returns turn out to be correct the entire city and county Democratic ticket is elected.

The Democratic gain in Lancaster city since last Fall is 400; in Easton Borough, 300, and in Shippensburg District 65.

The outer Districts of Lancaster County, show a slight Union gain.

Harrisburg Borough, Dauphin County, 53 Democratic majority.

York Borough, York County, 150 Democratic majority.

Northampton County is reported 2,300 Democratic majority, a gain since last Fall of 1,618.

Westfield, Pike County, 50 Democratic majority.

PHILADELPHIA, 12 o'clock.

Schuylkill County—Democratic majority about 900—a loss of 2,000 since last Fall.

Northumberland County—Democratic majority 600—a loss of 300 since last Fall.

Carlisle, Cumberland County—Democratic gain 12.

Bucks County—Partial returns show a Union gain of 500.

The Democratic candidates for Congress are elected in the First, Third and Fourth Districts.

EDWARD JOY MORRIS, Know-Nothing, is elected in the Second District.

An immense Democratic procession is now marching through the city loudly cheering for the victory in the city and the State.

PHILADELPHIA, Tuesday, Oct. 14—12 12.

The Tenth Ward of this city gives the Union State ticket 25 majority.

Reading City gives 485 Democratic majority.

PITTSBURG, Tuesday, Oct. 14.

All the Wards in the city are in, with the exception of the Fifth. They give the Union candidate for Canal Commissioner 752 majority—a loss on POLLOCK's vote of over 400.

The First and Second Wards of Allegheny City show a Democratic gain of 56.

Chester County—Westchester Borough, 200 Opposition majority.

Cumberland County, 500 Democratic majority—a gain of about 500 since last Fall.

Delaware County—500 opposition majority—a gain of 350 since last Fall.

Bucks County—Result doubtful—close vote. Last year 7,200 Democratic majority.

Lehigh County—900 Democratic majority—a gain of 150 since last Fall.

Erie City—5 opposition majority—opposition gain, 100.

Reported Majorities by Counties.

The following are all the returns (majorities) by Counties we have yet received:

Ohio State Election.

CINCINNATI, Tuesday, Oct. 14.

Toledo City—667 Democratic majority.

Sandusky City—72 Republican majority.

Florida State Election.

SAVANNAH, Tuesday, Oct. 14.

Additional returns from Florida indicate that the Democrats have carried the State by 500 majority.

BALTIMORE, Tuesday, Oct. 14.

Returns from sixteen Counties of Florida show WALKER, American candidate for Governor, 78 ahead, with 13 Counties still to hear from, which gave, in 1854, a majority of 394 for the Democrats. These Counties embrace one-fourth of the popular vote of the State, and if the Americans have gained in the same proportion as they have done in the other Counties where they have been successful, the vote must be a very close one, and the result doubtful.

The Congressional vote in some Counties runs ahead and in others behind the Governor's vote.

A dispatch from Charleston says that twenty Counties heard from show a majority of 120 for PERRY, the Democratic candidate for Governor, with nine Counties to hear from—among them Dade and Owen, in which the Americans are expected to have large majorities.

The Washington Union of this morning does not mention the Florida election.

Savannah Municipal Election.

SAVANNAH, Tuesday, Oct. 14.

The whole Democratic municipal ticket has been elected. The Mayor's majority over the American candidate was 187.

Vermont Election—Official.

The following is the official vote of Vermont at the September election:

Whole number	45,983
Necessary to a choice	22,992
Fletcher, (Republican)	34,052
Keyes, (Buchanan)	11,661
Fillmore and scattering	270

Governor FLETCHER's majority is twenty-two thousand one hundred and twenty-one.

Our Firemen Guests.

The "out-of-town" firemen, who participated in Monday's parade, returned home yesterday. Port Richmond Engine Company No. 9, numbering 40 men, passed through Nassau-street early in the afternoon, escorted by several City companies, and saluted our office as they passed. Engine Co. No. 4 of Boston visited the City Prison in the afternoon, and the band by which they were accompanied, BOND's Cornet, performed several pieces in the area, to the great delight of the prisoners, who loudly called an encore from their cells. For once, at least, the sound from the Tombs was not doleful. Later in the day, Engine Co. No. 5 of Charlestown, Mass., accompanied by Flagg's Band, visited the Park and exhibited the powers of their machine—a "Button" one—to a crowd of admiring lookers-on.

Extensive Forgeries in Boston.

From the Boston Post, Oct. 14.

Considerable excitement was created in the vicinity of State-street yesterday by the discovery of several bold forgeries.

At about 1½ o'clock a boy presented at the State Bank a check for $700, the signature to which was kept secret for certain reasons. The teller did not discover it to be a forgery, and paid into the hands of the boy one bill of $500 and two one hundred-dollar bills. A check for $900, and with the same signature, was next presented at the Granite Bank, but here without success, and while the check was under examination the boy escaped.

At the North Bank a check for $9,000, purporting to be signed by JOHN H. PEARSON & Co., was presented by a young man. It was so finely executed that the teller would not have been liable to investigate it, were it not a custom with the bank to pay no money into the hands of strangers without undoubted authority, and while he was making his examinations the young man suddenly disappeared.

A check for $970, bearing the signature of C. V. POOR & Co., No. 75 Broad-street, was presented at the Exchange Bank, but it was discovered to be a forgery, and the parties here also escaped.

Three forged checks on STURGIS, VALENTINE & Co. were presented at the Shoe-and-Leather Bank—two of $1,000 each, and one of $700. One of them was presented by a boy whose employer had received it in payment for articles sold. On a less accurate view of the guilty parties had been discovered.

The Newburyport Herald announces the death of MOSES BARTLETT, who would be in the Herald office sixty-five years, and died at the age of seventy-six.

POLITICAL MISCELLANY.

The Chicago Democratic Press learns from a reputable source that the German citizens of Joliet and vicinity are going over to FREMONT and BISSELL in large numbers. As true information concerning the issues of the campaign is disseminated among them, the number who adhere to the Pro-Slavery party grows smaller every day. The same is true of the Germans of Springfield. The best spirit prevails there, and a fine German Fremont Club has been organized within a few days. The Germans are the natural allies of freedom everywhere.

The Springfield (Mass.) Republican says the Buchanan Democrats, the old-line Whigs and Fillmore Americans have perfected a coalition in this Senatorial and Congressional District.

The Baptists of New-York, in State Convention at Penn Yan, have passed strong resolutions in favor of FREMONT, which read as follows:

1. That as Baptists we should be unfaithful to our history if, in a denomination, did we not unanimously protest against these measures, and faithfully labor for the preservation and establishment of civil and religious freedom in every part of our common country.

2. That we consider the great question soon to be decided by the people of this country, to be whether freedom of speech, a free press and free religion shall be sustained and perpetuated, or their destruction encouraged and insured.

3. That inasmuch as the Church of Christ has a vital interest in the right decision of this all-important question, we view it to be the duty of all her members to use their influence, their votes, and above all their earnest, faithful prayers to Him who holds the hearts of men in his hands, and who has declared that He will cause even their wrath to praise Him, so as to promote the glory of God, the highest interests of humanity, and hasten forward the time when "Judgment shall be proclaimed throughout all the land, to all the inhabitants thereof."

Mr. ALEXANDER KANSEN, of St. Louis, has published a card, announcing himself as the Fremont Presidential elector in the Ninth Congressional District of Missouri. Lucky for Mr. HAYES that HENRY A. WISE is not Governor of the State. He says:

"I hope my example will soon be followed by good lovers of freedom in all other districts of this State. To a regular organized ticket I shall yield with pleasure; otherwise, however, remain on my independent track until the morning after the election. A short printed address may be expected from me before the election takes place."

Ex-President VAN BUREN wrote a letter to a Mass Convention of the Democrats on the Western Reserve, Ohio, in which was the following passage:

"Since the expiration of my Presidential term, I have, with the approbation of my friends, scrupulously abstained from participating personally in political meetings; and in my late letter to the Tammany Society, I promised the public that my interference in the discussion of pending questions should terminate with that document.

"From those positions I may not depart. I am, therefore, constrained to content myself with assuring my Democratic friends in Ohio, that my sympathies for the cause they embark have not abated one jot or tittle, and that I regard its success, in the present condition of the country, not merely important, but indispensable to the future welfare of the Union."

The Courrier des Etats-Unis, lately converted to BUCHANAN, has the following acknowledgment in its issue of Friday last:

"The qualities and the public services which have made the reputation and the popularity of Mr. FILLMORE are above all question. The American people would be guilty of ingratitude and injustice should they refuse their tribute of admiration to the fearless explorer of the Western deserts—to the pioneer of the brilliant conquest of California."

The managers of the Norfolk (Virginia) Theatre, a day or two since, declined furnishing facilities for taking a test political vote of the audience, on the ground that they did not wish to impair the standing of an legitimate drama by mixing it up with politics.

The Richmond Whig of Friday last contains the following:

"We learn upon good enough authority that the state of Wheatland is now busily engaged in preparing his letter of withdrawal, in anticipation of the verdict of the people of his own State on Tuesday next. This man is considered by all sensible people the wisest and most patriotic of his tribe. We suppose the old piddler's that he is about to complete his public career by an act worthy, in view of the present condition of the country and the exigencies of the times, of a far better and greater man. He should have our warmest sympathies during the remainder of his life, and especially in his dying hour. Should his nature and long habit impel him to seek a small office at the hands of Mr. FILLMORE, he may rest assured that we shall take pleasure in using what influence we may have to secure it for him.

P. S.—We shall probably be able to lay old Buck's forthcoming letter before our readers on next Tuesday morning."

The Mobile Register recommends that in the event of FREMONT's election, the Southern members of Congress, instead of going to Washington, should repair to their respective State Capitols and take counsel with their State Executives and Legislatures as to what is best to be done.

The Democrats of California have nominated for Congress CHARLES L. SCOTT, of Tuolumne, and JOSEPH C. MCKIBBEN, of Sierra. The Democratic Electors are P. DELLA TORRE, of San Francisco; GEO. TREANOR, of Stanislaus; —— OLIVERA, of Los Angelos, and A. C. BRADFORD, of San Joaquin.

The Boston Atlas makes merry over a Fillmorite Mass Meeting in that region:

"The great Fillmore meeting, which has been advertised, puffed and heralded to a perfectly unlimited extent, took place in Charlestown on Friday afternoon. We anticipated a "grand and imposing demonstration," (for such was promised by the Courier,) but the grandeur was a minus quantity, and there was nothing but the imposition. The immense array of speakers promised may be classified as follows:

Did not Come.	Did Come.
Hon. S. G. Haven,	Gen. James Dana,
Hon. Francis Granger,	Geo. S. Hilliard,
Hon. Erastus Brooks,	E. A. Voss,
Hon. David Paul Brown,	James E. Farwell."
Com. Stockton,
Hon. Humphrey Marshall,
Hon. Edward Everett,
Hon. George Lunt,
Hon. R. C. Winthrop,
Hon. J. Thomas Stevenson,

The Machinery at the Crystal Palace.

To the Editor of the New-York Daily Times:

Your reporter has been misled, by some dangerous person, into a number of strange errors, as is shown in his strictures on the Montgomery Boiler at the Crystal Palace, as also the engines of Mr. BURDON's and Mr. RENOUNE—the facts being simply these: The Managers of the American Institute being in want of a boiler to drive a part of the machinery at the approaching Fair, applied to me. I succeeded in finding one, of a form ensuring great strength, it having been recommended as safe, and suited to the wants of the Institute. The boiler was then sent to the Palace and set up, but was not allowed to be fired until the United States Inspector had tried it with the hydraulic pump, up to 110 pounds of pressure. He then gave his certificate, allowing the boiler to carry seventy-three pounds of steam; the Institute, however, out of an excess of caution, ordered that no more than fifty pounds be carried. As to the tube said to have been burst, the facts are, that a wooden plug, some fifty feet from the boiler, blew out of a steam-pipe, and made some noise from the escape steam. The boiler has been, and is working well.

We are prepared to show, independent of the inspector's certificate, that this individual boiler is as safe as any boiler ever built, on this patent or any other. The same boilers are now, in a modified form, in all our war steamers, as well as in those of the Collins' line, including the Ericsson, Adriatic, and Havre steamer Fulton, and a number of other vessels.

The engine and boiler of Mr. BURDON were set to work under very great disadvantages, owing to the fact that the high dome and towers of the Palace over-topped the smoke-pipes attached to the boilers, thereby destroying the draft, so that but one-half the volume of steam could be generated. In consequence of this, the engine could not work up to one-half of its power. This entailed on the managers the necessity of erecting an additional boiler, in order to give a sufficiency of steam for the multitude of operations going on, and the new engines in course of erection.

This necessitated the cutting off of the Montgomery boiler, in order that the steam connections might be made, thus leaving Mr. BURDON's engine to do the work of a 75-horse engine, and at the same time left the "Endeavor," Mr. RENOUNE' engine, idle, for the simple reason that there was no steam to drive it. As to the non-patentability of Mr. RENOUNE' engine, this is also an error, as it has several beautiful points, entirely original, as the writer, who is somewhat versed in the history of inventions, knows. Patents will soon issue for this useful invention. All disinterested engineers, who have seen the engine, admired it.

To conclude, we trust that in all such matters as above, great caution will be exercised in giving currency to reports calculated to injure, relatively, the Institute as well as individuals.

All the above is respectfully submitted.

JAMES MONTGOMERY,
No. 4 Bowling-green, New-York.

The certificate can be seen at the Palace.

News from Mexico.

LARGE SALES OF CHURCH PROPERTY—CONSPIRACY TO ASSASSINATE CONSPIRATORS, ETC.

BALTIMORE, Tuesday, Oct. 14.

We have Mexican papers of Tuesday and Wednesday of last week, by way of Havana, containing later advices from Mexico.

The Government had suspended payment on the Vera Cruz Custom-House.

Large sales of confiscated church property had been made, and it was expected that the Treasury would soon be replenished.

Attempts to subvert the Government and a conspiracy to assassinate Comonfort had been detected and frustrated.

An arrival at New-Orleans direct from Brazos Santiago confirms the defeat of VIDAURRI's partisans at San Louis Potosi, at Mier, and at Villamuel. His prospects of success were completely destroyed.

The following are the particulars of the loss of the British mail steamship Tay:

This ship left Vera Cruz on the afternoon of the 26th of August for Tampico, and, as usual, had her course so as to run outside of Lobos Island, giving it a wide berth. A very strong current runs southward during the night, and about daybreak of the 30th, she struck on the reef off Lobos Island and the main land. When the ship struck the Captain endeavored to fetch her off, and throw overboard 300 bales of quicksilver, which were to have been landed at Tampico. These, it is said, could not be recovered. The mails and passengers were sent to Tampico in the ship's launches, and reached there in safety. Advices of the accident reached Tampico through the fishermen of the coast, and the Mexican authorities forthwith set off one for the scene of the wreck. She took from the Tay the Captain and five or six persons that remained on board, and then took on board the rest of the crew, which had taken refuge on Lobos Island, and conveyed them to Tampico.

Great Republican Meeting at Easton, Pa.—Discussion between Gov. Reader and Benjamin F. Hallett.

EASTON, PA., Tuesday, Oct. 14.

The Republicans held a large and enthusiastic meeting here last night. Senator WILSON was the principal speaker. Gov. READER was present and made a brief speech, stating that his challenge had been accepted by the Democrats, and that they had selected one of their ablest champions to meet and discuss the pending political questions of the day with them. The meeting, he said, would take place at National Hall, Philadelphia, on the 16th inst. Hon. BENJAMIN F. HALLETT is the speaker on the Democratic side.

Congressional Nominations in Massachusetts.

BOSTON, Tuesday, Oct. 14.

The Republicans in the Sixth District have nominated Hon. TIMOTHY DAVIS for reflection to Congress. In the Seventh District J. M. WIBURN was nominated for Congress by the Democrats.

Return of the President to Washington.

WASHINGTON, Tuesday, Oct. 14.

The United States steam frigate Wabash arrived at Annapolis this afternoon. The President will arrive here to-morrow evening, at 7 o'clock. The District Volunteer Militia and a civil procession will receive him and escort him to the White House.

The Episcopal Convention.

PHILADELPHIA, Tuesday, Oct. 14.

The House of Bishops concurred, to-day, in fixing Richmond, Va., as the place of meeting for the next Convention.

The House of Deputies concurred in the fifth article of the Constitution, passed by the House of Bishops, providing for a division of the diocese, making them smaller.

Disaster to the Steamer Daniel Webster.

PORTLAND, Monday, Oct. 13.

The steamer Daniel Webster, in coming up from Bangor this evening, struck on a sunken rock near Halfway Rock, fifteen miles from Portland, staving a hole in her bottom, which caused her to leak so badly that she was obliged to run into Jewell's Island harbor. The T. P. Beaor has gone down to her aid.

The Steamer James Adger Ashore.

CHARLESTON, Tuesday, Oct. 14.

The steamer James Adger ran ashore this morning, in a thick fog, on Channel Island. She will probably be got off.

The Know-Nothing Defalcation in the Comptroller's Office.

From the Albany Evening Journal.

"Owing to the strict and admirable manner in which all the books and accounts are kept in the Comptroller's office, under the new and rigid system instituted by Mr. BURROWS, the robbery could not long remain undetected."—Fillmore's Albany Organ.

"Admirable" indeed is that "new and rigid system" of the Fillmore Comptroller, which will permit a robbery right under his eyes, of the January Dues from the Auctioneers, of between $4,000 and $5,000!—which will hide and cover the crime for seven months—then allow the thief to take some $10,000 more from the August Dues—will abroad over this second greater fraud for two months—and would have allowed the defaulter to have gutted the whole concern, perhaps, to the end of the Comptroller's term of office, had it not been for his carelessness, forsooth, we must say, by the maladministration of this Public Bureau. LEE forgot to enter the proceeds of the last check, when he stole the money. Had it gone into his books, he might at this moment have been using the Comptroller's "new and rigid system," to supply Fillmore confidence men, all over the State, with the people's money to bet and bribe with.

This is the first occasion in the history of the Administration of the Finances of this State, that the detection of a second robbery has been made the occasion of the laudation of an official. Had it been a third robbery, or a fourth, which this "new and rigid system" discovered, the Comptroller would, perhaps, have asked for a civic crown.

Says the defaulter's organ:

"We have no desire to make accusations against any former Administration; but we are justified in claiming especial credit for the present Comptroller, for the certain and speedy exposure of a system of robbery which had been practiced under a former Administration without detection, either by the then Comptroller, or his immediate successor."

The late Comptroller, one of the most vigilant and capable Financial officers in this country, did not find it within his duties to suspect the accuracy of the footings of all the accounts signed and presented to the Legislature by his predecessors in office. The duties of a Comptroller, however, were thoroughly and faithfully performed by him.

Massachusetts Politics.

RUFUS CHOATE NOMINATED FOR CONGRESS.

Hon. RUFUS CHOATE was nominated, by acclamation, for Congress by the Democracy of the Fourth District of Massachusetts on Monday. We find the following report of the proceedings in the Traveller:

"A delegate Convention of the Democracy of the Fourth (Mr. CUSHING's) Congressional District, met at the Franklin School-house, Washington-street, last evening. There was a very large attendance. The Convention was called to order by JOS. BRIGG, Esq., Chairman of the District Committee. Messrs. KELLY, CROCKER and PERRIN were appointed a Committee on permanent organization.

A Committee on Credentials, of which Mr. BROMHEAD was chairman, reported 120 delegates present.

At this stage of the proceedings, S. R. SPENNEY, Esq., took the floor, and remarked that he had had the distinguished honor of being the last Democratic candidate for Congress; but under present circumstances, it was evidently not policy to nominate upon a strict party line—there was a gentleman, eminently fit for the place, who, he believed, would accept the nomination if tendered with any degree of unanimity. Under these circumstances he would withdraw his name, and move that Hon. RUFUS CHOATE be nominated by acclamation as the candidate for Congress. The motion was received with hearty applause, and was seconded by Mr. BROMHEAD.

A delegate said he had heard that the Chairman of the District Committee had a letter from Mr. CHOATE in his possession, positively declining the nomination. He desired to know if this was so. Calls were made for the question and for the letter.

Mr. SPITZ explained that he had received such a letter, but that it had been intimated that Mr. CHOATE would probably be induced to accept. The question was then put, and Mr. CHOATE nominated by acclamation amid enthusiastic cheers.

Quite a lively discussion sprung up on the manner of informing Mr. CHOATE of his nomination. Mr. W. F. A. KELLY moved to appoint a Committee for that purpose; but the proposition was greeted with cries of "No! no!" Mr. KELLY explained that he did not wish to have the Committee report immediately. A motion was finally made and passed, providing that the chairs be a Committee to inform Mr. CHOATE of the action of the Convention.

[illegible]

[illegible] GORTSCHAKOFF.

THE BRITISH FLEET ON THE RUSSIAN COAST.

The [illegible] have created quite an excitement in England, and the relations between the two powers again look cloudy.

The London Times says:

"The doctrine of intervention in the affairs of a neighboring State [illegible] the Russian forces and the menace of Paris, [illegible] enter his neighbor's house which is in flames, although he damages some of his neighbor's property in so doing, to guard his own habitation from harm. That is what France and England [illegible] but, as we have shown, it is not what they are about to do in Naples. A man may also enter his neighbor's house for the express purpose of stealing his valuables and cutting his throat because he is 'a sick man.' That is what Russia did with respect to Turkey. Shamefaced, and her interference was checked.

Intelligence has been received in Paris, that orders have been sent to a Russian squadron to prepare for sea, and that the destination of this squadron is Naples. Of course, with such a demonstration we can have nothing to do. If the Emperor of Russia chooses to send his ships to Naples or elsewhere, so he does not violate the Treaty of Paris we have not the slightest title to challenge the exercise of his discretion. This demonstration either means nothing or something. If nothing, the sham will soon be found out; if something, all we can say is, that the Russians are welcome to sail off for the Bay of Naples whenever they please, and to stay there as long as they can. The only direct effect of the demonstration will probably be, that the French and English Governments may think it necessary to increase the number of their ships upon the Neapolitan station. Such is the present aspect of this affair. Once more we say, if the principle of non-interference is to be carried out according to the Russian view, the French and Austrian troops now in Italy must retire within the boundaries of their respective States. If we interfere we shall do so against our will, and with the full weight of an immense moral force; for it must never be forgotten that England has less to gain and more to lose than any other Power, by mixing herself up in continental quarrels."

The London Post, semi-official, and supposed to represent Lord PALMERSTON's views, says:

"It is even so. Russia is what Russia was—the crafty aggressor—the loud threatener—the upholder of despotism—the mortal foe of liberty. We shall continue to do our duty. Our path is clear, and we have noble companions. Our action, as becomes us, will be neither hasty nor violent. We contemplate no bombardment of Naples, nor do we intend to destroy the throne of Greece; but we are not to be deterred by such manifestoes as that of Prince GORTSCHAKOFF, from continuing to occupy Athens until the protecting Powers shall decide how to remedy the crying grievances of the Greek people, nor from sending a squadron to Naples to watch over our interests, and the safety of those of our countrymen. Bolgrad and the Isle of Serpents, Greece, and Naples, here already are the clouds arising; but the storm will be dissipated. Danger there is none, so long as our policy is guided by its present honest, open, and English spirit, and whilst we have for ally the great nation whose interests and wishes are so completely served and expressed by the illustrious Emperor whom the voice of the people has called to reign over them."

The London Daily News says upon the subject:

"The circular of the Russian Minister for Foreign Affairs is neither more nor less than a solemn declaration, haughty in tone and defiant in language, of the part that Russia intends to assume in the political transactions of Europe; and a denunciation but thinly veiled under the stately courtesies of diplomatic style, against the projected interference of the two great Western Powers in Naples, and the continued occupation of Greece. But the Western Powers are strong. This base, bad BOURBON is a public nuisance to the commonwealth of Europe. He is an inextinguishable centre of insurrection and disorder. If not abated or reduced, he will breed a pestilence of anarchy and tumult the limits of which none can measure, and in the averting of which all are concerned. This is enough. On the lower grounds of self-preservation, France and England are fully entitled to coerce this miserable monarch into some decent and safe respectability of despotism. The madness of his present tyranny is unbearable, and the Western Powers will be forever disgraced in the estimation of Europe if they suffer themselves to be deterred from the execution of this great and righteous writ de lunatico inquirendo, by the miserable fictions of the Holy Alliance and the haughty menaces of the Czar."

The Policy to be Pursued by Austria on the Neapolitan Question.

From the Austrian Gazette.

The expedition of the Western Powers is in contradiction to the principles of international rights so frequently appealed to by diplomatists, and gives a severe blow to the security of European States for the future; but from it no peril will result to the present situation of Europe. We have reason to believe that, at the worst, the Western Powers will not go further than to recall their legations; they would thereby assume only an attitude of discontent, in revenge for the note of the Neapolitan Government, which appears to have wounded them. There would not have been any need for that to send out a fleet, but that display had its own motive. The British Government appeared determined to send to the coasts of Italy formidable naval forces; and the Cabinet of the Tuileries opposed for some time by various arguments that dangerous intention. France, as a great maritime power, and particularly of the Mediterranean, cannot allow any isolated cruise of a British fleet in the seas which bathe her coast. She ought, consequently, to have assumed an imperious tone with respect to England; but in that case, the bond between the two powers, already somewhat loosened, would have been considered as completely severed. The moment did not appear to the French Government suitable for an act of such importance, and the affair which constituted the object of the difference was not of a nature to give cause for a rupture. If France and England are to be one day in open opposition, it ought to be on a question popular in France, but the Neapolitan Government is not well looked on by the French nation. That circumstance had been well considered in England, and arrangements had been come to in consequence. The French Government resolved, therefore, to appear by the side of England in the Mediterranean with equal forces. The ostensible object is the same for both States, but the secret intentions of England are disconcerted. The British flag, in appearing alone on the coasts of Italy, would have been the signal of revolt against the several Governments, the French flag by its side is an exhortation to calm and order—is a declaration that the question at issue is only a conflict between Governments, in which no one ought to interfere. It is in that sense that the reinforcements made to the French garrison ought to be considered.

We think we can express an opinion on the issue of this affair which events will not contradict. The King of Naples will defend his right like an independent sovereign, and will declare in a manifesto that the attacks against his sovereignty will place the political rights of Europe in peril. He will prove, on the appearance of the Western fleets, that his subjects, who are represented as being kept down by force, will declare themselves enthusiastically for their monarch against foreign violence. Thus justified before Europe, and raised in the esteem of his country, he will yield, in the interest of European peace, to the violence exercised against him, and will submit to the conditions of the ultimatum. It is also in this firm resolution of the Neapolitan Government to save, at least morally, the international right of Europe, that may be found the cause of the inutility of the efforts of Austria at the Court of Naples. That power has done everything to prevent a conflict by persuading Naples to yield in time. But she would not go further than friendly representations and motives of general utility; she would not interfere with the political right of Europe, for which no other compensation has yet been found, except a general rule to serve as the basis for negotiations inevitable in the existence of States, and which may every day arise.

The English Chancellor of the Exchequer on the Election of Fremont.

Sir G. CORNEWALL LEWIS, Chancellor of the Exchequer, presided at the Radnorshire Farmers' Club dinner, at Knighton, and in course of his speech said that he had recently met with a statement in the public newspapers of a very startling nature, namely, that he, in his capacity of Chancellor of the Exchequer, had employed no less a sum than £5,000,000 of the public money for the purpose of influencing the return of the President of the United States. The statement had been gravely put forth by some portion of the public press of the United States, and from those newspapers was transferred to the newspapers of Britain. He must confess that, in his ignorance, he had been under the impression that the loan of £5,000,000, to which reference was made, contracted in the latter part of May last, was for the purpose of defraying the remaining expenditure of the war by bringing home the armaments by sea and land; but it appeared that he was mistaken, and that that sum was intended to [illegible]

[illegible] Chargé d'Affaires of the United States to the Republics of Central America, which article is to have the same force and validity as if it were inserted word for word in the same treaty. This article is one of very great importance to the commercial world, should Mr. SQUIER's undertaking be successful to a successful issue. A similar article, it is said, will be concluded between the Republic of Honduras and America, and also between that State and France. By that article the Government of Honduras agrees that the right of way over such road, (the inter-oceanic railway,) or any other which may be constructed through its territories from sea to sea, shall be at all times open and free to the Government and subjects of Great Britain, for all lawful purposes whatever. It also agrees that it will not impose any tolls, duties, or charges of any kind on the transit of property belonging to the Government of Great Britain, or on the public mails sent under the authority of the same, nor on the subjects of the British Crown, and also that all lawful produce, manufactures, merchandise, or other property belonging to the subjects of Great Britain, passing from one ocean to the other in either direction, shall be subject to no import or export duties whatever, or to any discriminating tolls or charges for conveyance on any such road, and shall be secure and protected from all interruption and detention on the part of the said State. It agrees further that any other privilege and advantage, commercial or other, which is or may be granted to the subjects or citizens of any other country, in regard to any such road, shall be also extended to British subjects; and she likewise engages to establish the ports at the extremities of the contemplated road as free ports, for all the purposes of commerce. In consideration of these concessions, in order to secure the construction and permanence of the contemplated road, and to secure for the benefit of mankind the uninterrupted advantages of such a communication from sea to sea, Great Britain recognises the rights of sovereignty and property of Honduras, over the line of the said road, and guarantees positively and advisedly the entire neutrality of the same so long as she shall enjoy the privileges conceded to her. And when the proposed road shall have been completed Great Britain equally engages, in conjunction with Honduras, to protect the same from interruption, seizure, or unjust confiscation, from whatever quarter the attempts may proceed. Nevertheless, Great Britain, in according her protection to the said road, and guaranteeing its neutrality and security when completed, understands that this protection and guarantee are granted conditionally, and may be withdrawn by her, if she should deem that the persons or company undertaking or managing the same adopt or establish such regulations concerning the traffic thereupon as are contrary to the spirit and intent of this article, either by making unfair discriminations in favor of the commerce of any nation or nations, or by imposing oppressive exactions, or unreasonable tolls upon passengers, vessels, goods, wares, merchandise, or other articles. The aforesaid protection, however, is not to be withdrawn without first giving six months' notice to the Republic of Honduras."

Mrs. Stowe on Temperance and the New President.

From the London Times.

The supporters of the Temperance movement sent, through the Earl of HARRINGTON, an invitation to Mrs. Stowe to attend a public meeting in Derby, in order that a congratulatory address might be presented to her. The Earl of HARRINGTON accompanied the invitation with one from himself, requesting the honor of a visit from Mrs. Stowe and her husband, (Professor Stowe,) at Elvaston Castle, during their stay in the neighborhood. Mrs. Stowe declined the invitation, as her husband was obliged to leave England to resume his official duties, and she was unwilling to undergo the reception of an address unassisted by him. In her letter to the Earl of HARRINGTON, she speaks of the advantage which the Maine Law has been to the State, and adds: "My heart warms with satisfaction at the beginning of the cause in England. I rejoice that the splendid accessions of your Lordship's rank and position are being made instruments in the great cause of human improvement, and I trust that the English and American oaks, which have been planted together in your beautiful grounds, in commemoration of the inauguration of this cause in England, may grow and mingle their branches together—emblems of our national union in every work of peace and good will to men. It is my belief, from observation and travel in England and Scotland, that almost all the poverty and misery of the lower classes now arises from the traffic in intoxicating drinks. In no country has benevolence been more energetic, and the progress of reform more rapid. The benevolent works of England strike a stranger as really stupendous, yet this one cause seems to nullify all and keep up misery, vice, and distress. It seems to me that there is now scarcely any cause of poverty and distress which the suppression of the liquor traffic would not remove. Since emigration to the colonies has equalized the population, it would seem as if there might be money enough and work enough to support the whole laboring population, were it not for the enormous taxation and drain of ardent spirits. The view of your great cities flaming nightly with signs of "rum, brandy and gin," is to the eyes of an American a appalling as the Slave market of our Southern States to an Englishman. With the majority of our respectable population in New-England, these articles are considered as pertaining only to the department of medical practice, and, if we have them in our houses at all, it is with the same precaution and watchfulness that we use other medicines. When we see how they are publicly obtruded on the eye here every night, with all the attractions of brilliant lights and splendid shops, we wonder that there are any who escape such temptations. But let us hope that our two countries are both on the eve of new and better things. It is our hope that the cause of liberty in America is about to triumph—that the wise and good, who too long have slumbered and slept, are awaking in good earnest to wipe out the disgrace of past remissness by placing in our highest national seat a President who shall consistently uphold the principles of freedom."

The Late British Minister to the United States.

From the London Globe.

The elevation of Sir JOHN CRAMPTON to be a Knight Commander of the Bath marks very distinctly the approval of the Government of the way in which that gentleman fulfilled his duties as the representative of her Majesty at Washington, and the time and manner of raising him to the dignity may be considered as intending to harmonize with the far more important indications which have been given by Lord PALMERSTON of his earnest desire to avoid any unnecessary offence to the American Government. Approving as they did of Mr. CRAMPTON's conduct, under circumstances of considerable difficulty, it was, we think, the duty of the Government to show in some unmistakable way that the aspersions cast upon that gentleman's personal honor found no echo in their minds. To do so at the moment of his landing in this country would perhaps have unnecessarily ruffled our somewhat touchy cousins across the Atlantic. Accordingly occasion was taken to include Mr. CRAMPTON's name in the first list of honors to be conferred upon the diplomatic corps, and along with two other old public officers, he has been made a K.C.B., in consideration of his long and meritorious services.

The London Times on American Ambassadors.

When important events are stirring, people watch with interest the slightest movements and listen to the lightest words of those who are connected with them, and an American Minister cannot speak now, even at an agricultural meeting in Hertfordshire, without exciting more than usual attention and curiosity. Unfortunately, it usually happens that the more stirring the budget of news the more formal and reserved is the Ambassador. If nothing in particular were going on in his country he might be tempted to speak out and tell us something about matters there; but if his country is on the brink of revolution, if it is torn asunder by angry parties that seem no longer able to keep the peace, if it looks to the ordinary spectator as if the two sides must come to blows by the next post, then our Ambassador is particularly bent on saying nothing. With a careless unconcerned air he interchanges compliments, personal and national, with the Chairman, as if nothing at all extraordinary were going on in his country. And if the Chairman of the meeting be himself a politician and a statesman, a member of the House of Commons and aspiring to office, he has, of course, too good manners to push any unwelcome subject on a brother statesman. He too displays a more than usual amount of careless and unconcerned courtesy, accumulates compliments on his guest, and does the honors with the same unexceptionable grace. Such was the interchange of civilities between Sir EDWARD BULWER LYTTON and Mr. DALLAS at the Hertfordshire meeting. It so happens that sometimes on these occasions the imagination of the spectator is morbidly active in proportion to the little it has given it to feed on; underneath the unconcerned exterior of the experienced diplomatist it sees a world of anxious and troubled thought, and is carried by the very force of the contrast from the social board at which he is sitting, with its easy talk and off-hand merriment, to the stormy scene in the distance, and the angry surface over which the black cloud and the seagull are presiding. We think of all the things that Mr. DALLAS might say, and of the breathless interest with which he would be heard. We see, as at the banquet which GOLDSMITH describes, the place where the branch of venison is not. Our ears feed on the Barmecidal repast of what is not said, and we have recourse to imaginary disclosures, confessions, apprehensions, and prophecies, such as an old American politician might present us at this time were he less diplomatic than Mr. DALLAS. Once, and once only, has a significant word. The word "planter" [illegible] across our ears; we prick up these sad ears [illegible] an instant, but it is only for an instant; they fall [illegible]

[illegible] Fashions for October.

From Le Follet.

Some of our most noted modistes, who at the commencement of the season spoke of a revolution in the form of dresses, have now determined to continue the style so much in favor with all ladies, and, at the same time, so convenient. Basques, then, will still be worn in walking and negligé dress; while in full dress the bodice will be without basques and basques. The skirts very full indeed when not trimmed, and arranged in double or triple plaits, according to the fulness.

At this intermediate season, too cool for the elegant little mantelets which reigned during the Summer, and not cold enough for Winter manteaux, we see many very pretty basquines of black taffetas, and sometimes of thin cloth. They are worn long, and fitted to the figure. When made of cloth they are frequently only bound; when of taffetas, they may be trimmed either with velvet, lace, ruches of ribbon, or any of the fancy passementeries, or galons of silk, and velvet broches, now so exquisitely made. The burnous, however, which promises to be a favorite in the approaching Winter, has already made its appearance on some cool evenings. One very stylish one we noticed was made of a thick material, with transversal stripes of various colors, yellow and brown predominating. The hood was very pointed, and ornamented by a large tassel. This burnous was made so that either of the front ends could be thrown over the shoulder, and thus entirely envelope the figure; it will, no doubt, be much adopted on this account as a sortie de bal. Small caracos, for in-doors, are more than ever in vogue; they are made in almost all materials, the prettiest being of velvet or taffetas.

Flounces are still much worn, though some skirts are trimmed en tablier. It is said that gauffered flounces will be very fashionable; also ruches on the edge of deep flounces. Some bodies of dresses are trimmed on the back as well as on the front, en echelle, forming a kind of pelerine. It has a very good effect in pompons galon of two colors.

There is nothing particularly new in the form of sleeves. Some are made with broad revers at the bottom, and reach nearly to the wrist. They are square, and not very wide; they are warmer than many sleeves, but are only suitable for demi-toilette.

We must not omit to notice a few very pretty evening dresses. One was of pink taffetas, with fifteen very narrow flounces placed in threes, thus making five rows of trimming on the skirt. On the edge of each flounce was a narrow black lace, of a light pattern, and above this a narrow Tompeouce fringe of white, crimped. This mixture of white and black had a very elegant effect on the pink silk. The sleeves, which were short, were trimmed in the same manner, and the berthe also, which, after crossing in front, was taken round the waist, forming basques, reaching to the upper trimming on the skirt.

Another was a white organdi dress, figured with pink rosebuds. On the skirt were three deep flounces, worked on the edge with a wreath of richly-shaded Autumn foliage in raised embroidery, having the appearance of being worked in chenille, producing quite a mossy effect. The body, a la Raphael, had round the top three narrow rows of trimming, like that on the flounces, caught up on the shoulders by bows of shaded green ribbon with long ends. The band was formed of a ribbon to match. In the hair were placed long sprays of various-colored heath, falling over the plaits, and hanging down the back.

A very exquisite dress was of organdi, with large oak leaves in lace worked in the muslin, and surrounded by a fine cord; these leaves enlarged gradually towards the bottom of the skirt, which was worn over a pink slip. The body and sleeves were trimmed round with a deep lace. Two bouquets of roses, without leaves, placed behind the bandeaux and fastened by bows of velvet with long ends, formed the coiffure which accompanied this elegant toilette.

A few unsuccessful attempts have been made to alter the style of bonnets, but the taste for le petit chapeau is so universal (at least with the fair sex) that we suppose we must not at present expect any great change. The fronts are still worn small—the crowns round and flat—the curtain very large and ornamental—the strings wide and long. The season is not yet sufficiently advanced for bonnets of light material and color to be laid aside; so that rice straws, crape, fancy straws, and even tulle, trimmed with Autumn flowers, are still seen. Bonnets of silk and crape mixed will, no doubt, soon reappear. Ivy is very much adopted as an ornament for rice straw bonnets, either in wreaths across the front, and hanging over the curtain, or in bunches on the sides.

We have very much admired a new flower in great demand at the present season called "the Autumn rose." It is more a fancy flower than a production of nature, and is made in various colors, almost always mixed with black, and forms a handsome ornament for either a velvet, blonde, or black lace bonnet. Yellow or cerise, marked with black velvet leaves, are among the most distingué. Sweet peas made in bright-colored velvet also form a favorite and elegant trimming; for instance, a spray shaded from cerise to the palest pink, or from very dark to very light blue, has a charming effect upon a terry velvet bonnet trimmed with blonde; indeed, almost all flowers are worn, only they are made in bright colors with Autumn leaves shaded.

The Velleda bonnet, which we will endeavor to describe, is an originality which will have a place amongst our most striking novelties. The front is in shape similar to that of other bonnets fastening under the chin, but above this front is a kind of puff, formed of one piece, either of black velvet or any other material. Towards this side the puff, or second puff, is coquettishly rounded. The crown is plain and sloping. The head is formed of several rounded plaits, ending under a wreath of feathers which edges the bonnet, and joins behind the crown. Very full blonde, with a long spray of flowers on one side, and small separate bunches on the other, ornament the inside of the front. That which completes the elegance of this bonnet is a broad guipure, black or white, according to the color of the material, falling gracefully round the puff.

Election of a New Lord Mayor of London.

On Monday, the 29th September, the election of a Lord Mayor for the year 1856-'57, in succession to the Right Hon. DAVID SALAMONS, whose term of office will expire on the 8th of November, took place in the Guildhall. At 12 o'clock the Lord Mayor, accompanied by Mr. I. J. MICHI and Mr. F. KEATS, the new sheriffs, and a large number of members of the Corporation, entered the Council Chamber, where a procession was formed, which moved to the church of St. Lawrence Jewry, where prayers were read, and a sermon preached. At the close of the services in the church, the Lord Mayor and Corporation proceeded to the Guildhall, and having taken their places upon the hustings, the Court was formally opened. The Recorder, in his robes of office, advanced to the front of the hustings, and stated that the livery were assembled on that day, in accordance with ancient custom, to exercise their ancient and undoubted right of proposing two gentlemen, to be returned to the Court of Aldermen, one of whom would be selected by that body to fill the office of Chief Magistrate for the city of London, during this next year. The names of the gentlemen who were qualified to serve in that office would now be read to them. The name of Alderman FINNIS was put first. Nearly all the hands in the hall were held up in his favor. The name of Sir R. W. CARDEW was then put up. It was received with loud hisses, and only one hand was held up in his favor. Alderman WIRE had only one hand. For Alderman CURRY there were eight; for Sir W. MUCKLOWE, one; for Alderman KENNEDY, none; for Alderman ROSE, none. The Town-clerk then declared that, in the opinion of the sheriffs, the election had fallen upon Aldermen FINNIS and Alderman CURRY; and they were then formally returned to the Court of Aldermen. The Lord Mayor and Aldermen then retired for the purpose of selecting for the Mayoralty [illegible]

London and Continental Money Markets.

From our own Correspondent at Liverpool.

CONSOLS, after considerable fluctuation during the week, closed Friday, for MONEY and account 93¼@¾.

On Wednesday, the 1st, the rate of discount of the Bank of England was raised from 4½ to 5 ⅌ cent. It was fully expected that the same would be taken at the usual Board meeting, on Thursday; but the Stock Exchange and the public were surprised by this unexpected departure from the ordinary course. The demand for MONEY at the Bank had, for several days, been very large, owing to the belief that the rates were about to be raised. A further rise of ½ or 1 ⅌ cent, is expected—the rate of the Bank of France being 5 ⅌ cent. BULLION in Bank has decreased £382,000. GOLD continued to be taken for export at the rate of £40 sterling ⅌ day.

Accounts from Paris still discouraging. The stock of bullion in the Bank of France is said to be daily decreasing, and a number of groundless reports prophesy an early decree for the suspension of specie payments, or for prohibition of the export of silver. According to the Venice correspondency, the Bank of Vienna has accumulated $30,000,000 in silver in its vaults, most of it having been drawn from France and Germany for purchase of railways by the Crédit Mobilier. This will greatly help, when take, in connection with the deficient silk crop, to explain the French financial crisis.

BARING BROTHERS & CO.

Cotton and Money.

LIVERPOOL, Friday, Oct. 3, 1856.

COTTON—The week's sales sum up 61,640 bales, and consist of 12,100 on speculation, 4,200 for export, and 45,040 to the trade.

Prices are unchanged; we quote

	Upland.	New-Orleans.	Mobile.
Middling	6 15-16d.	6 7-16d.	6¾d.
Fair	7¾d.	7½d.	6¾d.

The accounts per Persia, to hand on Saturday, created great activity in our market, holders at once raised prices ¼d. ⅌ lb. or altogether withdrew their Cotton, and a good demand prevailing, an advance of 1-16d. to ⅛d. was established on Monday, but since Tuesday influenced by the unfavorable state of the Continental money markets, and a growing conviction that the effect on this country would be far greater than at first anticipated, (a conviction which received partial confirmation by an advance in the Bank rate of discount the following day) the demand fell off, speculators pausing in their operations, and spinners only buying for immediate use; holders at the same time supplied the market more freely, and being desirous of realizing, conceded the advance they had previously established; the quotations of last Friday are therefore resumed.

Brazils are in good request but unchanged in value. Egyptians have been rather irregular. The arrivals of Surats have been considerable, but the demand keeps good and prices are fully maintained.

To-day the sales are estimated at 8,000 bales, of which 1,000 are on speculation, and for export, the market closes very firm, and a better feeling is apparent.

The Manchester market is quiet, but a fair amount of business has been done at full prices, except for India and China shirtings, which exhibit a slight decline.

MONEY.—The pressure in this market is excessive; the expected advance of ½ ⅌ cent. in the Bank of England rate of discount was made on Wednesday last, and as the shipments of gold to the Continent continue, a further rise in the rate of interest is looked for next week. Consols have fluctuated rather wildly, declining at one time to 93¼, but since rallying, close to-day at 93¾@93⅞ for money and account.

[illegible]

[illegible] I have made it to you and people of the [illegible] expected and prayed. They were [illegible] of the Kansas Militia, commanded by Gen. Strickler, this morning, [illegible] Free-State men who were encamped [illegible] Lecompton under guard of a company of the Kansas Militia, commanded by Capt. Cross, this morning, [illegible] Free-State men, [illegible] Governor, [illegible] in his present military capacity. If this the Governor's object to secure [illegible] and peace in the Territory, he will fail to accomplish it as long as he selects such men as Col [illegible] to fill prominent places in his Government. The Governor defends the action of these Free-State men [illegible] that they were found under arms after he issued his proclamation, and, as he signifies said at Lawrence, in defiance of it. The twenty-eight men and Missourians who were at Lawrence two weeks ago and who were dispersed by him—who burned the mill and houses at Franklin, and drove off the cattle belonging to the Free-State men, came in defiance of the proclamation. Col. Titus was with them; it was men connected with his company who murdered BUFFUM and stole the horses belonging to Free-State men on the road between Franklin and Lecompton. They were equally liable with Free-State men, they had violated the proclamation. The Free-State men are arrested, and Col. Titus, guilty of the same offence against the proclamation, and a great deal more, for he brought invaders upon our soil—thousand with a military organization and hands good powder—is free. The Free-State men have been examined before Judge CATO, and committed to await their trial on the charge of murder in the first degree. The Free-State men offered no defence. The testimony for the prosecution clearly showed that the party against whom they fought, was a party collected for the purpose of fighting Free-State men, and that they at the time the attack was made upon them held men of that party as prisoners. The Pro-Slavery Party, although within a short distance of the Free-State men when they were arrested, were not arrested. The Marshal who accompanied the troops was informed of the proximity of the Pro-Slavery men, yet he did not arrest them. The Free-State men were and are willing to acknowledge their participation in the fight. Many of them have been residents of the Territory since it was first opened to settlement. They are brave men, and considered they were doing a noble duty when they brought their rifles to bear upon the invaders of their rights and soil. Whatever may be the opinion of the Governor in regard to their action, the citizens of Kansas held their conduct in high estimation, and if necessity demands it, will, in imitation of their example, shoulder their rifles to defend their families and homes against the arms of invaders.

On last Monday the Governor visited Lawrence again. The people received him coldly, and he felt their treatment sensitively. They explained to him frankly and courteously the causes of their complaints against him. The Governor became enraged during the consultation with the delegation of our citizens, and treated the venerable and gray-haired John Speer, who was stating our grievances to him, in an unbecoming manner. The Governor, in his passion, declared that those Free-State men whom he had in custody at Lecompton went out upon their errand of protection to their fellow squatters, "in defiance of his proclamation, and with the intention of insulting him." Nothing can be more false than this. The Governor's Aid, Mr. ADAMS, was an adviser in the matter, and said that they ought to go; and dare the Governor say that his own Aid gave this advice to insult him?

The Governor finally cooled his heated passions. He stated his wish to have a company of Free-State men enrolled at Lawrence, to serve as United States soldiers for three months, whose duty it should be to preserve the peace and protect the property in that locality. He said the company could select their own officers, and he would commission them. Arrangements are now being made to enroll such a company.

The Governor complained most bitterly of our people, because they will not enter complaints against Pro-Slavery men in the United States Courts. He is so dull that he cannot see that the people have too much self-respect to enter complaints before Courts disgraced by such officers as LECOMPTE and Marshal DONIPHAN. The people have no idea of applying for redress to those who have tyrannized over and robbed them of their dearest rights. They are unwilling to subject themselves, voluntarily, to further insult and abuse from that quarter. They know they cannot get justice at their hands, and that it would be unmanly to submit it from those in whom they have no confidence, and who have disgraced the judicial ermine and the power of the Federal Government, by deeds as foul and damning as any recorded in history.

When the Courts are purged of such monsters, then can Gov. GEARY expect the people to claim their protection—not till then. Our people choose to suffer, rather than complain to such a source. From the Courts of Kansas, dripping with injustice and crime—from the Executive of Kansas, heretofore bloated with imbecility and inebriety, now, as ever, a machine for enforcing the bloody code of the Shawnee Mission—they have appealed to the justice of the country and the world, confident that their appeal will be answered and that justice will be done them.

Gov. GEARY is extremely anxious that our people shall vote at the election for representatives to the Territorial Legislature. This election is to take place in about two weeks. He uses all his powers of persuasion, and so do those connected with him, to effect this object. This our people will not do. By no act of theirs will the Territorial laws be recognized. Our people are made of "sterner stuff" than Gov. GEARY. They have more of moral courage and perception. He in Washington denounced the laws as infamous, and then solemnly accepted a position where it was made his duty to enforce the infamy. We know that he regarded the office of Governor of Kansas Territory as a post of the greatest responsibility. We hear that he said there was more of responsibility attached to it than to the ministry at the Court of St. James, or the Presidency. It was this idea that ruined him. Ambitious to fill a place freighted with awful responsibilities, believing that he possessed the power and capacity to brush away the discordant elements in Kansas, and secure peace and quiet to our unhappy Territory, he accepted the position of Governor, and, unfortunately for him, plunged into a stormy sea, whose waves he had neither the strength nor capacity to buffet or encounter. Had he as much of wisdom and judgment as he has of vanity and ambition, he might succeed. We predict that he will leave the Territory with more unpopularity than BUCHANAN. We repeat what we said in our last letter, that this man (GEARY) is the best machine to crush the Free-State men that the Administration have yet had in Kansas.

Gen. Reid on the Affairs of Kansas—He is ready to Fight the Free-State Men—Letter from Gen. Geary.

From the Independence (Mo.) Messenger.

INDEPENDENCE, Mo., Monday, Sept. 29, 1856.

MR. EDITOR: As some misapprehensions exist concerning the result of the late expedition against a band of marauders who infested the neighboring Territory, I ask of you the publication of the annexed letter, as perhaps a sufficient explanation of the affair, preventing me in my agency therein.

I have not asked of Gov. GEARY his consent to this publication, but feel sure he will have no objection that all the world shall know the honorable motives actuating both himself and us in this whole affair.

It is well known that when our expedition started its object was to redress the wrongs of our own citizens, and brethren, then in daily peril from outlaws that upon the soil of a sister State, where, to say the least, they had as good right to settle as any other people. That this mode of redress was only resorted to after it became apparent that all the ordinary and usual means of relief against wrong had utterly failed, and that to the strong arm of their friends alone they could look for any aid whatever—when the courts and laws had been put aside, and the civil authorities, overawed by a well organized, and desperate banditti, acting upon pretext of a political sentiment, but whose purpose corresponding with their deeds, were rapine, plunder and murder.

It was only under these circumstances, which we candidly and honestly recited to their Excellencies, our Governors, as a justification that a number of families, stripped of everything and driven from their homes by those remorseless robbers, sought protection within our borders, and what citizen, in view of the Government itself sending a majority of the Legislature of the assassins of slaves, and, for the time, disgraced a majority of the sons of our Parent Congress, that with one voice of our people, who were witnesses of these things, refused to take into their own hands their redress.

How the Free-State Prisoners Fare.

We copy the following from a diary kept by one of the prisoners:

Friday, 2 o'clock—Called on the sergeant of the guard for provisions; was informed that he had spoken to the Marshal, and that we were curtailed to two meals per day; 4½ o'clock the Marshal came; brought 50 pounds of bacon, fore-quarter of beef—about 110 pounds; 125 pounds of flour, one bushel of green beans in the pod, one quart of vinegar, six pounds of coffee, no salt, no sugar; we got about one quart of salt from a neighbor. 7 o'clock—Fresh arrival of nine prisoners. Marshal brought three candles for the whole amount of us, 111 men. Furnished 15 mattresses to sleep upon.

Sunday—About 100 pounds of beef—much damaged, 125 pounds of flour, 6 pounds of coffee, one-half pound of saleratus, 1 peck of beans, three candles, four pounds of sugar.

We give the above as the amount of provisions received by the prisoners since coming to Lecompton, and are willing to make oath to the same.

E. R. FALLEY,
ARTEMUS H. PARKER.

Commissaries for the prisoners, to distribute the provisions furnished for the same.

FRIGHTFUL TRAFFIC IN SLAVES—A BRITISH WAR-VESSEL EN ROUTE FOR VERA CRUZ—BUSINESS AT HAVANA, &C.

Correspondence of the New-York Daily Times.

HAVANA, Wednesday, Oct. 8, 1856.

Our two weeks of tempest, although it has served to prevent the ordinary business of the merchant and planter, has been rather favorable than otherwise to the iniquitous traffic in human beings, three cargoes having been safely landed—two on the south side, and one on the north—since my last notes, although the Captain-General of Cuba believes that "not five hundred negroes have been landed upon the island since he resumed the administration of the Government"—the most decidedly "know-nothing" speech I ever heard uttered, even in the most infected districts in the United States, where it was epidemic for a season. EVEN PIO DIAZ, or his brothers, are waking once more to the necessities of Cuban industry, and filling their warehouses—the woods and the swamps—with subjects for which, again, as in years past, the balances are being adjusted in the city of Havana, for the benefit of their capacious pockets. It is said that one of the vessels which made a recent landing was a British hark, but that is undoubtedly an error—the vessel was built in Maine. Two landings on the south side count 963 negroes; on the north, east of Cardenas, 374 or 375—1,337 in all, having lost by death on the voyages 36 in the three vessels, showing unusual care for the comfort of their victims. The importation of slaves is perfectly systematized, and with the best will for its prevention, in conformity with the words of interdiction uttered and reiterated by the Captain-General, can be carried on with impunity; especially as long as your merchant princes, shipbuilders, &c., are interested in its pursuit.

The ordent of the Cuban trader are eagerly sought for in your ship-yards, and ten per cent of overt profit will make some of your veriest saints sinners in Africa. At any rate, Yankee ingenuity and Yankee enterprise serve to defeat the best efforts of this Government for the suppression of the Slave trade, and they may well give up in despair. The complaints belong at home more than here at the present time, for without a file of soldiers for every foot of 1,800 miles of sea-coast, and each one imbued with the power and the spirit of CONCHA, it could not be prevented, with the temptation that is held out for success.

The British steam frigate Falcon, CHAMPION commander, entered the port of Havana yesterday and exchanged salutes with the Port and authority. This frigate, it is said, is going down to Vera Cruz. I think, however, that the vessel has called expecting to find instructions through the British Consulate by which to shape the action of the squadron gathering in these waters and along the coast of Mexico, and to go either way as orders may determine.

Our business prospects, with the large stock of sugars on hand, do not improve under the news received yesterday by the steamer Isabel. Our boxes ready for the markets of the world, and which we would like to sell, count about 190,000. The growing crop shows very large. Freights are dull—more so than last week. Exchange uncomfortable, 6¼ to ⅞ discount 60 days sight bills Northern cities; London, 5 to 5¼ premium. Health very good. Weather slightly better. Our new Consul keeps safe in Mississippi. It is hardly worth while to come out here for a short time, say five or six months. "Off with the head," &c.

Shocking case of Shipwreck on the coast of Cuba—Dreadful Suffering.

The Havana correspondent of the Charleston Courier relates the following particulars of the loss of the schooner Mary W. of San Francisco, C. THOMAS, JR., Master, which left Rio Janeiro for New-Orleans on the 15th of July last, and struck on the South-westward shore of Cuba, about thirty miles east of Cape Corriente, on the night of the 29th of August. The persons on board at the time, were the captain and his wife, CHARLES P. BLANCHARD, Mate, WILLIAM JOHNSON, THOMAS LYONS, JOHN NATHALL, CHARLES WELSH and JULIO ANTEQUERA, seamen; also a consumman, FRANCIS MACLELLAN from Rio. They saved their lives with the utmost difficulty, being all, almost naked; baggage, provisions, ship's papers, books, &c., were all lost. The ground they stood upon was sharp lava rocks. A few pieces of clothing, the crew possessed, and a blanket, fortunately saved, were appropriated to cover Mrs. THOMAS, she having been in bed when the schooner struck, went aloft in her night clothes and let herself down on the rocks; she was carried off by the waves and only saved by the most strenuous exertions of her husband and the crew. The man THOMAS LYON, in jumping from the masthead upon the rocks severely injured his foot and broke his leg. After which the captain, his wife, and the men, WM. JOHNSON, JULIUS ANTEQUERA and JOHN NUTHALL, started to see if they could find assistance, leaving one well man with the others who were disabled. They were without shoes, and proceeded to the West, and traveled 29 miles that day, but found no relief; they slept on the rocks, being unable to go further for want of food and water. On the morning of the 30th they started again for the westward, and traveled 15 miles that day, and did find some water. NUTHALL, [illegible] death, deserted and went off. NEW-YORK CITY.

The Militia—Parade Next Sun—A Ragged Army.

According to the law of this State, every citizen is bound to parade once a year, "armed and equipped in the law directs," excepting those exempted for good and sufficient reasons. For the last few weeks every citizen has received notices from the Commandants of the Uninformed Militia, of their enrollment in that body, and warning them to appear on Monday, the 12th October, fully equipped for martial exercise and inspection, at 10 A. M., at the rendezvous of their respective companies. The notices also stated that on payment of 75 cents in the Tax Commissioner or the Marshal, such citizen would be exempted for the year ensuing from all military duty.

Now, the First Division New-York State Militia is located in the City of New-York and Staten Island, and comprises legally but twelve regiments, although in reality there are sixteen. Each regiment has assigned to it a district, and it is the legal duty of the Captain of each company to notify all the citizens in his district to attend parade. This is found to be almost impossible, and is the cause of much irregularity, as it often occurs that notices are served on those legally exempt, who are so obliged to hand in their excuses. Of course there are not many who desire to turn out; they would rather pay the fine—whilst others pay no attention whatever to the summons and risk the chance of being fined; and so the majority of those who appeared on the street corners on Monday, were poor Germans and Irishmen who couldn't afford to pay, and some who turned out for the fun of the thing. There are a great many of the latter class. The squads out on Monday last brought vividly to mind the description of Falstaff's ragged army—such a motley crew was never seen before. The average number assembled at each rendezvous was about 20; and in no squad could we see more than two "armed and equipped as the law directs." The parade and inspection is admitted on all sides to be a mere farce, and is pronounced by military men the sheerest humbug and a nuisance. We saw one man with a loaf of bread impaled on his bayonet, while another had a churn dasher which he used in place of a musket, and still others used broomsticks. It is the duty of the officers of the ununiformed militia to drill the men on parade, but as this is found to be impossible, they generally content themselves by calling the roll, and those who answer to their names become exempt. We saw the commander of one corps, after calling his roll, carried bodily off by his command to a "saloon," where they insisted on drinking his health at his own expense. He took it all in good part, the treatment not being so bad as that of a Captain some years ago, who was pelted with stale eggs and rotten tomatoes when he attempted to review his squad. The Captain swore he wouldn't undertake to drill a squad again unless he had his regular company to back him.

The fines are collected whenever they can be, and the proceeds are said to be equally divided among the organized companies for their benefit, although there are doubts whether the money at all times reaches its proper destination. Three years ago the sum collected for fines and fees amounted to $16,000, whilst last year it was only $7,000! If the exemption fee is not paid before the 10th of October, a fine of $3, with costs amounting to $1 cents, will be strictly enforced in every case where there is a likelihood of collecting it. So, gentlemen, "step up to the captain's office and settle," if you would forestall the collector's visits—and remember that he has the Sheriff to back him where he meets any inclined to be obstreperous.

The Court of Appeals to hear excuses of delinquents will be held on Wednesday, Oct. 22, at 7 P. M.

Your Number, if you Please.

Could we persuade the occupants of dwelling houses up town to expend a few shillings each in having the street number painted on the glass window over their front doors, we would guarantee them if not an immortality of fame, at least the thanks of a grateful community. One might almost as well grope for three-cent pieces in Cimmerian darkness as try to find any given number in one of the cross streets at night, especially in the extreme upper part of the City. A short time since we had occasion to call on a gentleman in the evening, at his residence, on important business. Not having the exact locality of the house, we spent about fifteen minutes in finding it—ascending and descending the lofty steps in the neighborhood to inspect the numbers—but learned that our friend had gone out only a moment before. During this search we looked on the corner lamps for some light on the subject, but found that the authorities have not had the street names and numbers painted on them, as was talked of not long since. It seems the measure passed the Councilmen and has sunk to sleep in a Committee of the other Board. You see there is no "fat" in the job—nothing to give a handsome bonus to any alderman's next of kin.

Total Abstinence.

We are glad to see attention called once more to tectotalism. Signing the pledge will do as much good now as ever, and there is no less need of total abstinence now than ever heretofore. The first public meeting of the "American Juvenile Temperance Society" was held Monday night, at Demilt Dispensary under promising auspices. The special design of the Association is to gather the young people—to train the rising generation into habits of total abstinence as the one was that has just risen, was, and so much to its advantage. It was high time for such a movement. Lager bier is getting a good deal too fashionable for the temperance and the morals of young citizens.

The Eclipse.

The moon rose Monday evening at 5¼ with its Southern limb partially eclipsed. The drifting clouds that suggested umbrellas rather than smoked glass, obscured moon, eclipse and all for some time, though about 7 o'clock the watchers got a fair view of the phenomena. By 7 32-60 P. M. the eclipse was all over according to the Almanack,—the clouds obliged us to take the thing on trust, as no enterprise avails to brush a cloud off the moon's face.

The Troy Robbery.

Good authority assures us that the credit of discovering the goods stolen from the New-York store at Troy on Thursday night, is due to Mr. FREDERICK COTTING, baggage-master on the Hudson River Railroad, by whose acuteness, energy and perseverance they were traced to the house up town where the robber had deposited them.

☞ The "offal crop" of last Summer was a rich one. The contractors have removed to Barren Island since the middle of March 1,700 dead horses and cattle, 5,000 dead cats and dogs, and 600 goats, calves, hogs, &c.—total of all dead carcases, 7,850. Touching the cows, of course it was a sad thing for the owners in each case; if they had been prophets, the dear people might have been supplied with more cheap meat, and they made some little profit off of their loss by anticipating the natural death of the poor creatures.

☞ The Hebrews in town are greatly enjoying their vacation—their annual Feast of Tabernacles, which lasts through eight days from and including yesterday.

The Panchaita Slaver Case.

Yesterday, before United States Commissioner MORTON, was commenced the examination in the case of the bark Panchaita, whose arrest a few days since, while being towed out of the Bay, on a charge of being a slaver, was published in the TIMES.

The testimony of the first mate, ANDREW J. BROWER, was the only evidence taken yesterday, and is as follows:

I was engaged as mate on the Panchaita; I first got acquainted with Capt. Naylor some two weeks ago; the first time I saw him was upon going on board the Panchaita at Pier No. 55, in company with Mr. Wynburg and Mr. Weeks; he told me he was the captain of the vessel; I made an arrangement then to ship with him as first mate; the Captain told me the vessel was intended to go on a slave voyage to the coast of Africa; he said he wanted a man he could rely upon, and promised that the wages offered me would be only nominal compared with the pay I should receive; this pay he held out as being large, because he said it was his intention to frustrate the voyage; this, he said, he should do by seizing the vessel, and put for a port at Sierra Leone or Buenos Ayres, and there sell her. He guaranteed that by assisting in this I would make more than three hundred per cent over what I could make at anything else; as to the vessel's going on a slave voyage, he added that he had not been told definitely that such was the intention, but that he had every reason to think so; the next day Captain Naylor told me that he had been let into the secrets of the intended voyage of the Panchaita, by the owners, and Mr. Wynburgo, and Mr. Weeks, and that they told him she was going to the Coast of Africa on a voyage in the slave-trade; the Captain then showed me the cargo, to convince me that such was the intention; [illegible] number of casks on board to put water in; the [illegible] on board he said was to [illegible] on Monday [illegible] on Board; the steerage [illegible] the season; the carpenter [illegible] the fitting for the occasion. The Chapel cost a little over $10,000, and has a long time been greatly wanted by the institution.

Brooklyn Board of Health.

TUESDAY, Oct. 14, 1856.

Present Mayor HALL and Aldermen GARLEY, SHAW, and WALSH.

Minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved.

The Captain of the brig Salem, from Palermo, came forward as directed to explain why he had violated an ordinance by landing hides. In the permit granted at Quarantine, the cargo was stated to be "Sarsaparilla, &c." The Captain taking advantage of this etc., landed about 4,000 hides into lighters to be taken to New-York. The Captain said that he had told the Mayor's Clerk at the time he got the permit of what his cargo consisted.

Alderman WALSH moved that the Captain be fined $250, and be imprisoned for six months for a breach of the Quarantine regulations.

Alderman WALSH, after some conversation, withdrew this motion, and moved that Deputy Health Officer MARTINEAU be cited to appear before the Board to-morrow to answer a charge of carelessness in having granted a permit without specifying other. Adopted.

The Health Officer said that he had no report to make, and the Board adjourned.

Commodore Porter is to proceed to the Bay of Naples, and there make a movement in the same direction. It remains to be seen how the Neapolitan Government will act, and how Naples will receive their emissaries, for on this depend the important issues.

The news accounts by this arrival are essentially unchanging to the farmer and miller, as well as the Grain and Flour speculator. The Cotton market demand for American Wheat has shown a further advance, at the same rates—Flour advancing, at the same time, on the basis, on prime new brands, of 2d. POLITICAL NOTICES.

TO THE FRIENDS OF FREMONT.—THE undersigned, having constituted themselves a Committee for the exclusive purpose of circulating Documents bearing upon the momentous questions now at issue before the American people, respectfully invite contributions from all who are interested in securing the triumph of Liberty and law at the approaching election. Money in large or small sums, from whatever quarter it is received, will be scrupulously applied to this sole object, and not one cent of it will be diverted to any other use. All that is necessary, in order to carry the election by unexampled majorities, is that the people should have the means of thoroughly understanding the enormous crimes, folly and imbecility of the present National Administration, the victims of which Free-State men of Kansas are the victims, the necessity of securing that Territory to Freedom, and the qualifications of the People's candidate for the Presidency.

Contributions may be addressed to the Secretary of the Committee, Mr. A. ARNOLD, No. 131 Nassau-st., N. Y.

DUDLEY S. GREGORY, ISAAC SHERMAN,
GEO. J. CORNELL, BEN. FIELD,
DENNING DUER, C. A. DANA.

BARNUM'S MUSEUM.
The Subscriber has the honor to announce to the public that the celebrated novel entitled
DRED;
OR, THE DISMAL SWAMP,
A TALE OF THE DISMAL SWAMP,
from the pen of Mrs. H. Beecher Stowe, has been dramatized expressly for his establishment by Mr. H. J. CONWAY, and will be produced with
NEW AND APPROPRIATE SCENERY,
STARTLING STAGE EFFECTS, &c.,
ON THURSDAY EVENING, OCTOBER 16, 1856.
Believing that what is worth doing at all is worth doing well, he has spared no pains to do justice to his talents as well as to the distinguished authoress, by presenting a drama which is a just and correct reflection of her popular book, instead of adopting merely the name. It will also be seen that this drama (which has been in rehearsal several weeks) embraces the talents of every member of the SUPERBOB DRAMATIC COMPANY now engaged at the Museum, as well as numerous valuable auxiliaries, including last and least, though by no means the least in importance, the redoubtable, renowned and admired "man in miniature,"
GENERAL TOM THUMB!
for whose peculiar and fascinating powers the comic and diminutive character of "TOM TIT" has been expressly written up.
